

To whom it may concern,

My name is Marissa du Bois and I saw your listing for the IT Support Engineer position on craigslist. I have a broad range of technical experience and knowledge that I believe would be of benefit to your organization. I currently work remotely as a programmer analyst for the wine and timber industries for a company based in Walla Walla, Washington. I am seeking a position closer to home with a more structured environment and room for advancement.

In my current role as a programmer analyst I have a range of responsibilities. I do everything from designing and developing software features, to server administration, and end-user tech support. I have experience developing on and supporting full-stack Microsoft environments. In my prior role as a Help Desk Technician I was responsible for deployment and repair of hardware and peripherals for a large sized corporation with a call center of over five-hundred people. In addition to development and support I have experience with telecommunication administration, intranet administration, Windows scripting, Server administration, and multiple programming languages including C#/.Net. I have excellent communication skills, I'm detail oriented, and self-motivated.

I have attached a copy of my most recent resume for your consideration. In addition, I have a small portfolio of various personal projects that I have developed here. I look forward to discussing this or other positions with you further.

Thank you,

Marissa du Bois
